Detroit's own Tom and Vicki Celani, founders of the esteemed Celani Family Vineyards, the Honorary Family Vineyards for 2009, will select from several award-winning wines from his family vineyard in Napa, Calif.

The main event on October 3 begins with a private pre-event reception hosted by Tom and Vicki Celani and The Townsend Hotel's Rugby Grill Executive Chef Jim Bologna. The Celanis have once again donated wine to be tasted and enjoyed, while sharing their passion and knowledge of wine with others. They will also provide wine for the main event tasting that will be shared among a guest list of 400 people.

The Celani family also will be opening their extraordinary Bloomfield Hills family estate for an intimate dinner of 24 on October 2. Wines from their private cellar will be paired with food created by Chicago's Executive Chef Jean Joho, the 2009 Honorary Chef/Restaurateur.

"We are looking forward to another sensational event, after last year's CRUSH Birmingham exceeded all expectations and proved to be an incredible success," said William Seklar, President of Children's Leukemia Foundation of Michigan. "This year, we will continue that momentum with world-renowned chefs and wine experts. All proceeds from CRUSH Birmingham will benefit Children's Leukemia Foundation of Michigan, and we appreciate everyone who supports this cause."

Co-chairs for CRUSH Birmingham are Jim and Debra Berline. General admission for the event is $250 per person, and $350 per person for patron admission.

The main event ticket for CRUSH Birmingham includes a Dom Pérignon champagne toast, wine and small plate pairing stations, a silent wine auction sponsored by the Plum Markets, and later, a desert and gourmet coffee buffet.
